1 DAY

Tarangire National Park — Full-Day Elephant Safari

A full day in Tarangire National Park, about two hours from Arusha: thousands of elephants in the dry season, ancient baobab trees, lions and leopards along the Tarangire River, and a picnic lunch in the park.

EDITORIAL OVERVIEW

Experience Overview

Tarangire National Park is one of the best places in Africa to see elephants. In the dry season, from roughly June to October, thousands gather along the Tarangire River, the park's only permanent water, among some of the largest baobab trees in Tanzania.

A day along the river

Leaving Arusha early, you reach the park gate as the morning light washes across the savanna. The game drive follows the river, where elephants, buffalo, zebra, wildebeest and giraffe come to drink, and the surrounding woodland, home to lion, leopard and, with luck, a sighting of the park's rarer animals such as fringe-eared oryx or greater kudu.

Birds, baobabs and a picnic

Tarangire has recorded more than 550 bird species, including the colourful yellow-collared lovebird. A picnic lunch at a viewpoint over the river breaks up the day, and the afternoon drive explores quieter corners of the park before you return to Arusha in the evening.

Itinerary

Your day-by-day journey through Tanzania

DAY 1

Full Day — Tarangire National Park

Depart Arusha at about 7:00 am and drive around two hours south to Tarangire National Park. The morning game drive follows the Tarangire River, where elephant families come down to drink and play, and where you can also find buffalo, giraffe, zebra and wildebeest. Your guide watches the trees for leopards and the shade for resting lions, and points out some of the more than 550 bird species recorded here. Enjoy a picnic lunch at a viewpoint beneath the baobabs, then continue the afternoon drive into quieter parts of the park. Return to Arusha by about 6:30 pm.
